The Pony Express was the first long-distance mail delivery service in the United States of America. Each solo rider rode his pony as fast as he could, with only two minutes to change horses every 25 kilometers, and stopping to rest for another rider to continue the journey after 25 km. It took 27 riders and 135 horses to complete the 3,140 km from St Joseph in the East to Sacramento, California in the West.

These were brave young men, only nineteen years old, on average. They were usually not very tall but they were strong. It was an exciting and dangerous job; the riders carried a knife and a small gun to protect themselves in hostile Indian country. The weather was often cold and windy, especially in the mountain areas, so it was a hard life.

Some facts about a kiwi.

A kiwi lives only in New Zealand. This is an unusual bird that can't fly but it can run. It is active at night. It eats insects.

There are about 80,000 kiwis in New Zealand today. This is bad news because it is a very small number if you compare it to 5 million birds in 1920. New Zealanders are working hard to save the kiwi. There are lots of special projects to help it survive. Kiwis have problems with their eggs and babies. Cats eat eggs and attack young birds. Dogs are a big problem too because kiwis can't fly away from them.

The best place to observe a kiwi is a kiwi house. It's dark inside the house. You stand behind a special window. You see the birds but they can't notice you. Kiwis don't like bright light so remember not to use a flash when you take pictures.
